Department of Political Science and Public Administration

Introduction:

The program comprises of three Core courses and Elective course having four options to choose from. Methodology is the basis of any research work. The first course includes a detailed instruction on research methodology. The second course gives an overview of issues in political science and public administration or the students can opt for computer application course. The third course provides an opportunity to students to understand how to do review of literature and then do it themselves. For elective the students can choose from four elective the one that will be useful for them in future research work.

A General:

1- Name of program: Ph D
2- Duration of program: Six years
   (a) Minimum duration: Three years
   (b) Maximum duration: As per university rules
3- Structure of program:
   (a) Number of Core Courses: 03 (course work)
   (b) Minimum number of Elective Courses to be opted by students:01

4- Credit of Courses:

Course	Credit of each course	Total number of courses	Total credit
Core course	04 for 3 and 2 for Ethics	04	14
Elective Course	04	01	04
Total			18

5- Examination Scheme:

Semester Examination	Distribution of Marks (each paper)
Mid semester	20 marks
Internal Assessment	20 marks
End semester	60 marks
Total	100 marks

6- Examination scheme of Review of Literature:

Semester Examination	Distribution of marks
Presentation	40 marks
Review of Literature	60 marks
Total	100 marks

Note:

1- To be eligible to appear in End Semester Examination a student must appear in Mid Semester Examination and Internal Assessment.
2- It is compulsory for the students to have 75% attendance in the class room program.
3- For appearing in the paper of Research and Publication Ethics, credit may be completed with blended / short term course of HRDC etc.

Paper - III (POL CC - 144)
Review Literature

L	T	C	C
0	0	4	4

Maximum Marks: 100

Objectives: A literature review is an evaluative report of information found in the literature related to your selected area of study. The review should describe summaries, evaluate and clarify this literature. It should give a theoretical base for the research and help you (the author) determine the nature of your research. Works which are irrelevant should be discarded and those which are peripheral should be looked at critically.

A literature review is more than the search for information, and goes beyond being a descriptive annotated bibliography. All works included in the review must be read, evaluated and analyzed (which you would do for an annotated bibliography), but relationships between the literature must also be identified and articulated, in relation to your field of research.

In writing the literature review, the objective is to convey to the reader what knowledge and ideas have been established on a topic, and what their strengths and weaknesses are. The literature review must be defined by a guiding concept (eg. your research objective, the problem or issue you are discussing, or your argumentative thesis). It is not just a descriptive list of the material available, or a set of summaries.
